

THE TOUCH

The Touch, a poignant romantic comedy with moments of sensuously charged passages, revolves around three childhood friends and the experiences they share. Lawyers for the same firm, Beth, the lead character, Karen, and Judith wish for love. Karen is done with “boys” who only want quick sex. She needs a man and eventually realizes he’s been there the entire time. Judith desires a man capable of taking her from simmer to boil before he boils over. Beth believes in knights in shining armor and meets San Francisco radio personality Ray Griffin. Their chemistry is off the charts. However, Beth soon realizes that even though Ray is a knight, his armor is tarnished. He still agonizes over the tragic passing of his fiancée. Torn by the guilt of falling in love again, he’s also afraid of losing someone else to Death. In their quest for lasting love, the girls won’t tolerate deceit and deal with dishonesty accordingly. Such is the case when one unlucky guy suffers their wrath which subsequently unleashes his wife’s painful fury, the MMA Bantamweight Champion. Bottom-line, neither Beth, Karen nor Judith need a man in their lives, but they would like one. That said, they’ll never settle for Mr. Almost Right.

5 Stars Readers' Favorite Book Reviews & Awards Contest:

“...thought-provoking...full of humor and sadness...refreshing...fully dimensional story that will appeal to romance and women’s fiction readers.” “...excellent job of writing vivid and interesting characters...I found myself laughing out loud in spots...very nice contrast to some of the sadder elements in the story...” “Amazingly written characters...Part humor, part sadness, and part sensual story, the author weaves all of the parts together to create a wonderful story about love and friendship...” “...enough sizzle in the romance to keep me excited...not too much that it got bogged down with the details...amazingly written...very real and authentic.”